

Dear friends of ITI,

Warm greetings for the World Theater Day to you all!

Today, we are all living in a strange world and this deadly virus is showing us that we are all together in this. All the theatres are closed, no rehearsals, no gathering of people to celebrate, and the list of things we cannot do goes on. I don't think there is a single person whose life is not affected by the virus. However, there is always a lesson to learn.

It is teaching us that we are all same – no religion, no social status, no race, no color, etc. – there's no difference – we are all humans. We are all same.

God has given humans a wonderful gift – ability to be curious and be creative. Each one of us has that ability and curious nature and no virus can strip it away from us. Our curious and creative nature will only be strengthened as we go through the dark times connected together as a strong family.

Let us stand together and ignite the fire within us. Let us think of this time as a challenge to reach out more people with our creations and bring healing through art.

Stay healthy and God bless you all.
